The amendment received 4/21/06 has been entered and claims 9-13 are currently pending in this application. It is noted a reference was attached to the amendment but it is not made of record. Please inform the examiner of any related cases, pending, allowed or abandoned. Please provide an abstract on a separate page and update the specification regarding the continuing information.

In view of the arguments presented, the objections and rejections of record made in the Office Action of 1/26/06 are hereby withdrawn.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 9-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Greilich.

Greilich (Am J of Medical Sciences) entitled "Quantitative Assessment of Platelet Function and Clot Structure in Patients with Severe CAD" teaches on page 16 column 1 last two full paragraphs, determining platelet retraction force and clot elastic modulus allows assessment of clot structural integrity and platelet function. The effects of aspirin were evaluated. On page 19 last paragraph, monitoring of platelet force development and clot elastic modulus may aid in delineating the contributions of patients undergoing antiplatelet therapy.

The claims differ from Greilich in that they obtain two samples from the same patient to monitor treatment of unstable angina or myocardial infarction where Greilich took a single sample from many patients with CAD to determine the effects of their treatment.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in this art at the time the invention was made in view of the teachings of Greilich to monitor treatment of patients with unstable angina or myocardial infarction because unstable angina or myocardial infarction are both encompassed by severe CAD and Greilich states the same tests as presently claimed may aid in delineating effects of patients undergoing antiplatelet therapy. Aspirin is known as antiplatelet therapy.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 9-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 9 line 6, "said blood sample" is improper because a new blood sample would be required both before and after treating.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Wong (US 2002/0068719 A1) teaches monitoring thromboembolic disorders.
